Captive Sailors of Vessels Sunk by German Ship Tell of Exciting Midnight Flight—Eitel Problem Renewed.

Newport News, April 12.—How the German merchant raider Kron Prinz Wilhelm, which came into this port Sunday morning was chased by British warships late Saturday and barely escaped capture is described by officers of the British merchant vessels destroyed by the Wilhelm in the south Atlantic.

Shortly before noon today the 61 officers and men of the steamers Tamar and Colby were taken from the Wilhelm aboard a tug and rushed down the river to the British ship Cassandra, which will sail later today for Glasgow.

The British ship Cassandra, which was taken from the Wilhelm, is now being towed by the tugboat Colby. ## NO MORE RECRUITS ARE AVAILABLE NOW

English Army Officer Reports That Eligible Men Who Are Willing to Enlist Are Scarce.

London, April 12.—There are virtually no willing recruits left to be recruited in those parts of the country which I have visited," writes an army recruiting officer to the Times. "Those who remain in the state are either the employ of the state; doing work which is essential for the defense of the state; under binding obligations to parents, employers or employees or religious principles from which the state alone can release them; earning such good money that they are deaf to all considerations, ignorant or skulkers."

USE STEEL CASINGS ON GERMAN SHELLS

Substitute for Copper Will Solve Problem of Scarcity of Copper in Germany.

Furness, Belgium, April 12.—According to the report of a Belgian officer in charge of munitions captured from the Germans, the latter are now using steel casings for their shells. This officer reports that the substitution of steel for copper has proved very successful. The drawbacks being the steel casing takes more time in making, and when they split in a gun the weapon is damaged before it is again fit for action. These casings are cheaper than the brass shells in ordinary use, and if they continue to prove successful the copper problem in Germany will be in a large measure solved.

PRZEMYSL WARRIORS LAUDED BY EMPEROR

Austrian Monarch in Telegram Shortly Before Fall of Fortress Praised Valor of Soldiers.

Petrograd, April 12.—A series of documents captured at Przemyśl has been published here by the official press agency. Among the interesting papers are copies of telegrams from Emperor Franz Josef and Archduke Ferdinand expressing satisfaction, good wishes and blessings over their receipt of the news that the garrison was preparing to make a dash for freedom. The emperor's report of the failure of the sortie, the Emperor telegraphed: "It is a severe blow to me, that the gallant attempt of the garrison to break out suffered failure. Nevertheless, in regard with humble pride the incomparable bravery of the warriors to whom success was not vouchsafed, I thank those who took part in this battle with all my heart, and bless the memory of those who gave up their lives in it. In the future history will sing their praises, for they kept up their hearts until the last."

In publishing this telegram to the forces, General von Kusmanek added these words: "Soldiers, this is the honorable acknowledgment of your victories, and achievements, show yourselves worthy of it." On the eve of the surrender General von Kusmanek wrote to his wife, "I am well but shall not be able to return home for a long time. Our Russian enemies are chivalrous, and will deal with me according to my rank."

AMERICAN STEAMER WRECKED ON ROCKS

Steamship Minnesota Hits Rocks Off Japanese Coast But Crew and Passengers Are Rescued.

Kobe, Japan, April 12.—The American steamer, Minnesota, plying between Japanese ports and Seattle, struck a rock at half past nine o'clock last night off Iwajima near the southwestern entrance to the inland sea. In a wireless message Captain Garlock has asked for a salvage steamer. He says all the passengers and crew are safe.

The Minnesota sailed from Nagasaki Sunday morning bound for Kobe, Yokohama and Seattle. It passed through the straits of Shimoda safely and was in the inland sea when the accident occurred. It is believed the Minnesota was floated, but beyond the fact that one of her holds was pierced by the rock, the amount of damage is not known. Wireless telegraph was employed by the Minnesota in calling for help. A steamer thought now to have been the blue funneled line steamer Cania, from Seattle, rescued the passengers and crew. The Minnesota is now being towed to a safe place. A salvage steamer with tender and divers have been sent from Moji and will reach the scene of the wreck tomorrow morning.

The Minnesota on her outward trip left Seattle February 3 for Yokohama, where she arrived February 22. She was at Nagasaki March 3 and Hongkong March 11, and sailed for Manila on her return trip on April 4.

The Minnesota run aground in Japan waters; no other casualties; was refloated.

Abarno, the first witness, testified that after he had entered the cathedral, he changed his mind about lighting the bomb. Polignani, the detective who had posed as an anarchist beside him in the cathedral, the witness said, Abarno said he put the lighted cigar with which he intended to light the bomb in the hand of his hat and it went out.

In cross examination Abarno repeated that the cigar he carried was unlighted. On another occasion he said he had thrown it away in the vestibule of the cathedral. Questioned as to which statement was correct, he became greatly excited and said he was a traitor. Light it so if we are arrested, we will have done something good."

Three hundred Americans have filed requests for transportation, but officials believe the number will be increased when the transport, which had been capacity of 1000, arrives at the Mexican port. Threatened famine, continued fighting in the outskirts of Tampico, and lack of work have caused an exodus of foreigners from Tampico. ## SECURE NO DETAILS ON LATEST VICTIM OF SUBSEA RAIDERS

Harrison Line Steamer Wayfarer Has Been Torpedoed.—Report Naval Battle Off Scarborough.

London, April 12.—The Harrison line steamer Wayfarer has been torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine, according to a message received in London by a news agency. Details of the incident are lacking.

The British Wayfarer was 566 feet long, registered 65,222 tons. She was built in Belfast in 1903 and was owned in Liverpool. She left Liverpool January 27 for Liverpool, where she arrived February 17.

Naval Battle Waging. London, April 12.—The reports current here that heavy fighting is taking place at sea off Scarborough, indicate that some naval engagement is in progress.

No official information has yet been offered concerning the naval engagement reported to have taken place off the coast of Norway. France continues to report progress in Argonne and beyond the Meuse.

At the same time French authorities admit the German counter-attacks have been exceedingly fierce and on the capture of a trench at Epervier. The French have not advanced beyond positions captured by them early in April. Paris admits also that the Germans have been temporarily lost by them between Fort At Mousson and St. Mihiel, but even there the French claim to have held most of their gains.

Relief Ship's Loss. The sinking of the Harpaluce, the Belgian relief ship, on her return voyage, has created much commotion here, but the American relief commission is awaiting official confirmation of the report that this ship was sent down by a German submarine, before making a protest.

Interest in prohibition in England continues unabated with late material for discussion supplied by a morning paper, which asserts the government is prepared to take over the industry of manufacturing light beer, at the same time suppressing all other intoxicating drinks.

AMERICAN SCRIBES STIR ENGLISH ENVY

Success of American Correspondents in War Zone Arouses Resentment in London News Circles.

London, April 12.—Some of the London papers are complaining because American newspaper men are accomplishing what British representatives of the profession are unable to do, and are blaming English statesmen in consequence. Two of the instances most frequently cited are Sir Edward Gray's reply to the "New York Times" interview with the chancellor, and Frederick Palmer's interview with General Sir John French.

The American newspaper men in London have been so constantly thwarted by the censorship that they are not inclined to regard their work with any special pride, but the re- and British journalists may be inferred by the observation of a London editor or who said, when expressing disappointment because his paper did not obtain an interview with King Albert of Belgium that the Associated Press obtained last December: "If I were a reporter, I would be a reporter."

AMERICAN TOURISTS WELCOME IN FRANCE

Inquiry by American Auto Club Brings Reply from President That Conditions Are Good for Touring.

Paris, April 12.—Many Americans, who have been to automobile along the continent during the summer, have written president of the Touring Club of France, which is 330,000, asking if it is possible to travel in France during the war. M. Bailly (the president) has answered these inquiries in part as follows:

"Not only is it possible but would be agreeable to and appreciated by the French people to have Americans in France. The roads generally are in excellent condition and all accommodations are ready for the opening of the season. The Touring Club of France will give its assistance in attending to the formalities made necessary by martial law."

M. Bailly says railroad service has been virtually re-established in France.

WILSON DECIDES NOT TO MAKE CANAL TRIP

Go With Daniels Through Canal to Expo in July.

Washington, April 12.—President Wilson has decided definitely not to accompany Secretary Daniels on the contemplated trip through the Panama canal to San Francisco. It was said at the White House today the question of the president's visit was dependent on the condition of the international situation. The president today accepted an invitation to speak in Philadelphia May 10 before a large group of new American citizens.

An invitation to speak at Independence Hall, Philadelphia, on July 4, has been declined.

The president, it was said at the White House, will attend the annual luncheon of the Associated Press in New York on April 20 if public business permits.

Marriage License: A marriage license has been issued to James L. Thomson and Myrtle B. Howard, both of Janesville.

RUSSIAN HORDES ARE POURING INTO PLAINS

RUSSIANS DESCENDING SOUTH-ERN SLOPES OF CARPATHI-ANS SAY'S LEMBERG DISPATCH.

EXPECT CRACOW MOVE

Failure of German Reinforcements to Arrive at Mountain Passes May Mean Drive From New Quarter.

Lemberg, Galicia, April 12.—The Russian armies, according to dependable information reaching Lemberg, have made successful advances along the wide front from Bartfeld to Ustok, the greatest gain being in the direction of the southern slopes of the Carpathians, forcing the Austrians back with heavy losses to lines between Mezolaborz and Smolnik. At the same time the Russians advanced along the line between Svednik and Duka where the Austrians were unable to make a serious defense, and abandoned their stores and transports to their retreat.

The most determined opposition on this whole line of battle was on the part of the Hungarians, whose fighting qualities are being highly complemented by Russian officers.

No German Reinforcements. Petrograd, April 12.—There are still no indications that the Germans have any further reinforcements to the Austrians in the Carpathians, notwithstanding the fact that German forces along the Niemen river in the north, near the East Prussian frontier, appear to be now actively on either side of the Vistula. The conclusion, accordingly, is drawn that the German troops will begin a new offensive movement from some other quarter. This attack is expected by the Russian staff from the direction of Cracow.

Expect Cracow Attack. According to semi official observations made by the Russians who have convinced themselves that the Germans had no intention of developing operations at the present time along the Warsaw or East Prussian front, with a view to relieving pressure on the Austrians, the German attack would be a drive from Cracow and the appearance of a strong German force in this vicinity would cause no surprise.

Thus far the only aid extended to the Austrians in the Carpathians appears to be that given by Bavaria frontier guards, which were removed to the Austrian front.

Meanwhile the Russians are pushing ahead slowly to all the principal passes of the Carpathians except along the Tere-Munkacs line, where the Austrians are entrenched.

London, April 12.—The fighting in the Carpathians continues along a 70 mile front with apparently undiminished vigor. The Russian claim to have repulsed a determined counter-offensive on the part of the Austrians and the Germans. On the eastern flank the Russians are drawing near to the Uszok pass. If they carry this position they will command another easy road to Hungary.

Interest in the near eastern situation has been stimulated by the receipt in London of two special dispatches. One of these dispatches declares that the recent mission to Berlin of Field Marshal Von Der Goltz, a retired general of the young Turks, who have declared that Germany must send a strong force to invade Serbia and threaten Bulgaria, in order that munitions of war might be sent to Turkey, while the other quotes the prime minister of Bulgaria as saying a new situation has been brought about by actions of the allies in the east, in which Bulgaria sees a possibility of realizing her national aspirations.

Janesville Commercial Club's Big Corn Contest Will Arouse Interest Among Rock County Farmer Boys

Now is the time for boys of Rock county to begin thinking about entering the corn contests which will be conducted this season by the Janesville Commercial club. There are to be two contests this year, one for boys under twelve years of age to be known as the "Ten Ear Contest", and one for boys under twenty years of age to be known as the "Acre Contest."

Rock county leads the state as a corn growing section, a reputation which has been largely established by the boys who have taken part in previous contests. The county is also fast becoming known as one of the greatest pure bred seed producing areas in the west and it is possible for the boys to have a large part in this work. The Janesville Commercial club is offering every incentive to arouse and encourage an interest on the part of the boys in these important lines of agricultural activity.

The boys' corn contests are fast becoming popular in Wisconsin but none of them is more attractive than the one promoted by the Commercial club. In the Acre Contest all boys under twenty may grow an acre and as a reward of faithful work get not only a good corn crop and a free trip to Madison but in addition may win one of the twenty-five cash prizes which are offered by the Commercial club.

The boy who enters this contest will be well paid for his work by the corn he raises, for Rock county is a good county to grow corn in. He will, in addition, have the satisfaction of being one who helped to find out how much corn can be grown on an acre in this county as well as having a pleasant excursion to the state capital with all expenses paid.

The acre may be a part of a large field plowed, planted and cultivated with the rest, the boy doing his proportion of the entire work. Send in your application now. Join the club.

Ten Ear Project.

If you are under 13, boy or girl, you can enter the ten ear project. Pure bred Silver King seed will be furnished free for this contest. Send in your application before the seed is all gone. Try for one of the twenty prizes of merchandise offered by the merchants of Janesville.

Now is the time to enroll in one or both of these clubs. Write today to the secretary of the Commercial club for blanks. Be one of the 200 which are expected to be in each of these clubs.

If you wish you may use the blanks which are printed below. Included also are the rules of the contest and the record blank which each contestant shall fill out and file with the contest manager.

Rules for the "Acre Contest" follow:

1. Age not over 20 years on June 1st, 1915.
2. Corn must be grown in Rock County by boys who are residents of the county. Each contestant (except in case of young members who may hire heavy work) must do all the work of preparing the ground, planting and cultivating an acre plot, which may be in a field alone, or may be a portion of a larger field. He may have help in his work.

3. If plot is in a large field of corn a pencil and paper sketch of the field with plot located should be made on the back of the record blank.

4. Before husking the plot, or acre, must be measured by the local supervisor. The Commercial Club Committee is to be free to remeasure the acre if they so desire.

5. A complete and accurate record of the crop should be kept by the contestant in note book kept for the purpose, and when complete, copied onto blank which accompanies these rules. These blanks properly filled out and signed by the local representative, should be mailed to the Secretary of the Commercial Club one week before the day on which the prizes are to be awarded.

6. Entries must be sent to the office of the secretary of the Commercial Club on or before June 1st, 1915.

7. The seed recommended to be used is Silver King (Wis. No. 7), Golden Glow (Wis. No. 12), Murdock or Reid's Yellow Dent.

8. The husking must be done under the supervision of the local supervisor to be named by the Janesville Commercial Club. No corn will be credited that is not fully matured and has not been husked under the supervision of these officials.

9. Seventy-five pounds of ear corn shall constitute a bushel, the corn to be weighed at the time of husking in the presence of the local representative who signs this report.

10. The best ten ears should be brought (or sent) to the office of the Secretary of the Janesville Commercial Club one week before the awarding of prizes which date will be announced later. These ears will remain the property of grower and will be returned to him. The Commercial Club however reserves the right to exhibit them in other corn shows.

Dinner Stories

A very small boy was trying to lead a big St. Bernard up the road. "Where are you going to take the dog, my little man?" inquired a passer-by.

"I'm going to see where—where he wants to go first," was the breathless reply.

A youthful schoolgirl was stopping at her grandmother's. In the home was an aunt, several years her senior, whom she was thought to resemble. One morning an old dorker who did chores around the house, burst upon them with the remark: "Miss Nancy, I did not know till yesterday when I saw you and Miss Fanny dressed alike at church that you was so much alike."

"Indeed," some one replied, "Uncle Lee, which do you think the best looking?"

The old dorker, not wishing to be partial, scratched his head and said: "Well, I believe Miss Fanny (the schoolgirl) is most the flourishingest looking in the face. But I believe Miss Nancy is most the daintiest looking and she has the most company ways."

Little Herman was a very backward scholar and his teacher frequently lost all patience with him. One day, when he seemed to be more dense than usual, the teacher exclaimed: "It seems you are never able to answer any of my questions, Herman. 'My father wouldn't go to the trouble of sending me here!'"

FEDERAL DEMURRER IN HORN CASE FILED

Government Attorneys Have Writ Want Delay in Habeas Corpus Petition.

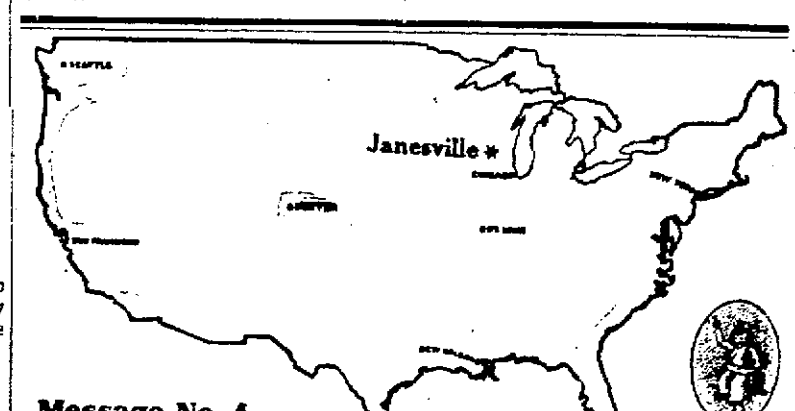

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.) Boston, April 12.—Werner Horn's petition for writ of habeas corpus was attacked by government attorneys in demurrer filed in the federal court today. Horn, under indictment for illegal interstate transportation of explosives with which he tried to destroy the international bridge at Vancorbore, Me., claimed he had been denied his legal rights. The demurrer contests this claim and declares that Horn was not denied due process of law by the refusal of Federal Judge Putnam and Hale to hear the habeas corpus petition presented in the Maine jurisdiction.

Message No. 4 To the Business Men of Janesville

A young doctor, making a start in a small town, decided that to be prosperous he must look prosperous. He bought a new buggy and two good horses. Although he had only a few patients he always kept on the jump, attending to his patients' smallest needs. People began to notice this young doctor driving about town and they called him because he looked busy and prosperous. He got his start—a start that led to a comfortable practice.

A town, like this doctor, must look prosperous to be prosperous. Clean streets, attractive store windows, well-painted buildings and dwellings give the prosperous air. Well-painted buildings are greatest of these.

THE UNIVERSITY LOBBY.

The word has been passed out that the administration is opposed to the university; that loud-mouthed agitators have stirred the voters to a frenzy against the state institution of learning and that it is the time for every loyal son of the university to rally to its support. This is about as far from the truth as anything could be. The administration is not opposed to the university. Loud-mouthed agitators have not stirred the people to a frenzy against the university. It is, however, true that certain measures are pending in the legislature that, if passed, will put the university on a firm business basis; will establish its financial standing; will take the management of its financial matters from the hands of incompetent experimenters and put them in the hands of business men. They will do away with the prostituting of the university for political purposes and make it what the taxpayers are paying for, a true institution of learning. When such men as former Governor Howard, the late United States Senator William F. Vilas, Hon. Philip Norcross, and dozens of others who can be named, resign from the University board of regents because they refuse to be a party to the methods employed by the theorists in charge of the institution, it is time to investigate. When it is a known fact that the appointment of new regents have been made only on approval of the president of the university, it is time to call a halt and take the university out of politics and restore it to the people. That the university is a great institution; that it has done and is doing a great work for the people of the state, is known and credited, but when such an institution stoops to the petty tricks of a ward politician to obtain appropriations, when it maintains a lobby to pass or defeat matters of legislation, then the taxpayers should be heard and the question threshed out on its merits. The administration measures to establish a central board of education is an excellent one and it should be passed. It should be supported by every citizen who is interested in the future of the university, regardless of the hue and cry that has been raised because special privileges are to be taken away from men who have proven unfit for the trust given to them. As long as the state university is supported by appropriations from the state treasury just so long should the people have a voice in its management and policies. Let us hope they will succeed despite the adverse lobby that seeks to nullify the will of the people by caboling the legislature into doing something it will be ashamed of later.

GOOD POLICY.

The city administration is following out the right line of thought that is backed up by public sentiment when it seeks to enforce its rulings relative to the removal of the telephone, telegraph and electric company's poles from the main section of the city. Not only are they unsightly but they are a menace to public safety with their network of wires running along the streets adjacent to buildings, their poles standing in the gutters, hindering the flow of water during spring rains and unusual falls of rain. The public is behind the city administration in that they should go and there should be no compromise unless for some unusual reason. The companies affected have known for some time past that this was to be expected. In fact the telephone companies agreed to it some years ago, but preferred to delay matters, trusting eventually to be able to prolong the delay until they were all ready to act, which would have been an indefinite delay. There is another good reason why the transfer should be made this summer and not next. Milwaukee street will need attention within the next twelve months and before anything can be done with an idea of success this work must all have been completed, the ground permitted to become settled to the new conditions. It is good policy to bring these public serving corporations to a full understanding of the situation that they do not own the street in fee total and are subject to the ordinances of the city government.

UNFORTUNATE CIRCUMSTANCES.
It is an unfortunate circumstance that the majority of the press correspondents stationed at Madison this present legislative session are thoroughly saturated with the spirit of the anti-administration doctrine they can see nothing good in the work attempted by the Philipp supporters. Even the larger press associations' reports are permeated with the same policy, and correspondents supposed to furnish an unbiased news service permit their correspondents to write their reports from a biased point of view to the detriment of the service and a direct loss to their subscribers from the news value. As a consequence the average reader of the daily papers miss the real purport of the administration's ideas and the work of the various committees, composed of honest and faithful legislators, and the grossly misrepresented that the real issues are befuddled. Despite these handicaps, however, the administration expects to secure the passage of certain reconstructive measures that will be of great benefit to the state as a whole.

Safety first is all right to announce as a slogan, but the next thing is to enforce it. The system of "jay-hawking" across the corners of intersecting streets in the business section is in force and the Madison man who recently objected so strenuously to its enforcement in his case would be the first one to obey the ordinances of Madison relative to autos stopping when cars were taking on or letting off passengers, but thought he could cut his way through Janesville because he had once lived here. He found out his mistake and the police are to be commended for their enforcement of the ordinance that was passed in the interest of public safety.

No one wants to do away with the Wisconsin state fair, but the average taxpayer wants to know why and wherefore his money is expended by a board of men appointed for their political influence and not for the fitness of themselves to the work they are named to perform. It is all right to call a milkman a judge of dairy interests, or a real estate man a judge of farm values, but for heaven's sake where does a hat salesman come in and how can an owner of a restaurant and vaudeville theatre qualify as an agriculturist?

Governor Philipp would consolidate a lot of perfectly useful branches of the state government into compact departments. He is perfectly right. When one special man is sent out to inspect the weights, another man to inspect the sanitary condition, still another to inspect the boiler, yet one more to inspect the purity of the milk, all at one crossroads creamery, no wonder the cost of state government has risen with strides in the past few years.

No matter if the birds do not decide to occupy the bird house in your yard at once. They may be hunting around for more commodious quarters, and some other feathered visitors who arrived later may be glad to be your tenants during the next few months. Meantime encourage the visitors by offering inducements of worms, or bread crumbs, or salt, to tell them they are welcome.

If Janesville is not to have a regular city baseball team why not encourage a continuation of the Commercial league that gave so much satisfaction in past years? It might be possible to organize some of the leading manufacturing plants' teams for the Saturday half holiday games that would give the citizens a taste of what Janesville could do if given a real opportunity.

Did you notice that Senator La Follette did not ask his "dear friends" the "common people" to vote on Tuesday last on the question of how the apparent deficiency in the state treasury of some four million dollars was to be made up? Instead they were asked to protest against the raise of the railroad rates which Governor Philipp said he would veto even if the legislature passed it. A distinction without a difference. Yes?

When Mayor Thompson takes his seat as mayor of Chicago he will be one of the few real, genuine republican mayors in the United States who made his campaign on national issues and was elected. Chicago has sent a message to working men the nation over and they will not be slow to respond when the opportunity is given them.

It is none too early to start boosting for the coming fair. It has been named "Janesville's Big Fair" and it will live up to its name. With the Evansville fair, the Rock County fair, a week later, the two should draw not only exhibits, but horsemen from all over, and insure the success of both undertakings.

If there is any question as to the statement that the state university has dictated politics for some years past, let the advocates discuss the question by letter or word of mouth with some of the former regents who are signed because of the interference of Van Hise in administrative and business affairs.

Cement roads have evidently come to stay in this country, just as they have in Europe. One of the advantages the allies have had was the excellent roads leading from the military depots to the fighting line that permitted the rapid transportation of supplies by auto to the men who needed food and ammunition.

On the Spur of the Moment

ROY K. MOULTON

Spring Reading.
I am not reading much about the war, I really don't know what they're fighting for. I do not read a line of politics. The kind of stuff that is devoured by hicks. Bob Chambers' models don't get me at all. I haven't seen an Oppenheim since And when it comes to New York magazines, I'm off from them; but I am long on beans. And radishes, and turnips; or I read New catalogues that tell of garden seed.

There are 206 bones in the human body unless a man is a bonehead, and then there are 207. An autocrat is a man who knows how to repair automobiles. Diplomacy is the art of saying something that you don't mean to somebody who doesn't believe it.

Yes, But What Is It?
A Michigan man explains to electric light users what a kilowatt is and how to compute one: "First, multiply the current by the resistance of the wire, divide this by the meter on the wall, and add whatever you can't multiply. The answer will come in dollars and cents. Just divide these by the price you pay per kilowatt, and multiply again to find out what a kilowatt is. You know just how many kilowatts you have had, just what they cost you apiece, but you don't know what they are, what they look like, who made them, or what shape they are."

Can You Blame Her?
"How is the law made?" asked the instructor in United States history. "Oh," replied the maiden, cheerfully, "the senate has to ratify it, and then the president has to—has to veto it, and then the house of representatives has to—she hesitated for a moment and knit her pretty forehead.

Mr. Taft's Advice.
"Don't marry scrubbers," says Mr. Taft. So all the rapt and listening maids can ripple their applause. Indeed 'tis sage and sound advice. A girl who's married to a scrub will lead an awful life. A scrub will loaf, a scrub will booze, he'll gamble if it please him; But how, pray tell us, is a girl to know on whom to marry? A cheery fellow comes along, with manners like John Drew. A knitted tie and green silk socks. He looks the goods from heels to hair—regain high life swell; and eyes of lovely blue. He might well be a Claude Melnotte, but how's the girl to tell? It means an awful lot to her, for if she is mistaken she'll be the one to suffer when he can't bring home the bacon. Another knock-kneed, seedy guy, who drives a grocery cart, May have beneath his battered vest a fourteen-karat heart.

A Martyr.
Folks always look at me askance. As though they would not take a chance. On me or my veracity. They have a doubt concerning me. They say that I, in pleasant way, Had often led them far astray. By promising a lot of things, And then said promises took wings. They do not seem to know that I To keep my word do ever try. Or that I do the best I can. Who am I? I'm the Weather Man.

Only T. R. to Hear From.
Mr. Taft says he will not be the Republican candidate for the presidency. That seems to make it almost unanimous.

Mrs. William Hale Thompson, wife of the newly elected mayor of Chicago, helped her husband very materially in the campaign that has just closed. The effectiveness of her campaigning is attested by the fact that about two-thirds of the women voters of Chicago cast their ballots for her husband.

STEALS SUIT CASE; MUST GO TO PRISON

Evansville Youth With a Record Draws Severe Punishment in Judge Maxfield's Court.

A prison record cost Earl Hopkins of Evansville the punishment of fifteen months in the state's penitentiary on the charge of second offense larceny, this morning when Judge Maxfield passed sentence on the young man for the theft of a suit case valued at $6.50, last Friday.

One year in the prison is the minimum for the crime Hopkins pleaded guilty to. On Saturday he protested bitterly when told that a year in Waupun was the least that could be given under the charge. This morning he faced the court in a stolid manner and his sentence without a comment or flinching. A person with a prison record is not extended sympathy beyond a reasonable amount, and a second theft would brand you as a habitual offender, Judge Maxfield declared. Hopkins' sentence will begin today at noon and he will be taken to Waupun, Tuesday or Wednesday, by the county authorities.

Workmen on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad Sunday night discovered a man in a box car caged with merchandise at the transfer yards, breaking open boxes of food and clothing. The St. Paul men shut the door on the thief and locked him in securely. Then they called the police.

When Patrolman Jay Hymer arrived he unlocked the door and found an Austrian named Joe Miller, sitting on a box in his car prison. He was arrested this morning on the charge of breaking into a car for the purpose of stealing, but being unable to understand English did not make a plea. His case was adjourned until April 15th and in default of one thousand dollars bail he will remain in the county jail. Mike Connors paid his respects again to Judge Maxfield in the municipal court, when he was haled before the bench to answer the drunk and disorderly charge. Held Thomas Lane. Sunday morning a man named Thomas Lane appeared before Desk Sergeant William E. Gower and "gave himself up for a dastardly crime." He confessed to have committed a crime of which he was proud. "I am inside of him and a few other ghostly affairs," Chief Champion, after hearing the story, decided the padded place for Lane. He was questioned this morning and it is expected an examination will be ordered to ascertain his sanity.

SIDE TALKS

BY RUTH Y. CAMERON

THE CLOSED MIND.
You remember the man who, when asked why he talked to himself so much, said he had two reasons: First, he liked to talk to a sensible man; and second, he liked to hear a sensible man talk.

ONE PERSON CAN ALWAYS CONVINCE.
I often catch myself at this process and quite frequently I am amazed at my own ingenuity, the readiness with which I can change my arguments to suit my inclination, and the avidity with which they are swallowed.

THE MAN WHO IS NEVER TO BLAME.
It is really wonderful how many convincing arguments one can easily find and that the thing one wants is best.

CONVINCING ONESELF ONE CAN AFFORD EXTRAVAGANCE.
Some of the most ingenious self-convincing is that done by the person who wants to buy something he knows in the bottom of his heart he can't afford.

AN OPEN MIND IS A SPLENDID THING TO HAVE.
But there are times when a closed mind has its advantages and these times are when one is trying to convince oneself of things which in the bottom of our hearts one knows are not true.

Animal Jingles

FOR LITTLE FOLK
BY ALICE CREW GALT

THE ENVOUS ROBIN.
One day up in a cherry tree a sulky Robin sat.
He tucked his little head beneath his wing.
Said he, "I am discouraged, it is no use to try,
I'm sure nobody cares to hear me sing."
The reason that he felt that way was that the night before
He'd heard a Nightingale up in a tree
And just because the Nightingale had sung so very well,
The Robin was as envious as could be.
Said he, "If I can't sing like that, I will not sing at all."
And so he sat and sulked all morning long.
Then all at once he heard a voice that said to him, "I wish
You would be kind enough to sing one song."
It was a little boy who leaned upon a window sill
Close to the sulky Robin's cherry tree.
Said he, "I'm trying to get well, and I am very sure I'd do it faster if you sang to me."
The sulky Robin only said, "You don't mean that, I know;
The Nightingale sings very much the best."
"Oh, no," the little boy replied, "You're such a cheerful bird, I'd rather hear you sing than all the rest."
And so the sulky Robin said, "All right, I'll sing for you."
And started to sing up his cherry tree.
Then when he saw how very much pleased the boy, he sang
Until he very nearly split his throat.
When he was through the little boy said, "Thank you, Robin dear."
The Robin said, "You're welcome, little man,
And after this I never will be envious at all.
And I will always sing the very best I can."
If what you do seems very small, don't think it is in vain;
Just go ahead and do your best with all your might and main!

Heart and Home Problems

BY MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Please tell me what would make the eyes grow. With no success have I tried vaseline, but with no success have I tried vaseline.
(2) My hair used to be very curly, but for the last year it has been so oily there isn't any curl in it. What can I do to make it like it used to be?
(3) I am eighteen years of age. What would be a stylish way to wear my hair? It is very short.
(4) Am I too young to have steady company?
(5) What would you recommend a good face cream?
(6) Should high school girls play basketball with teams out of town?
(7) I would like to join the movies. At what age would you advise me to join, and do you think it would be all right? I am the only child in the family.
PEG O' MY HEART.
(1) Red vaseline, five grams; boric acid, ten centigrams. Make into a smooth paste and massage into the brows at night.
(2) Tincture of alcohollic cantharides, one dram; tincture of capsicum, one-half dram; tincture of nuxvomica, two drams; cocoa oil, three-quarters of an ounce; alcohol, two and one-half ounces. Shake before using. Massage nightly into the scalp.
(3) Bob it a la Castille.
(4) In excruciating cases a girl knows her mind at eighteen, but as a rule she is foolish to settle down to one man at that age.
(5) Cold creams are like soaps, as that which agrees with one skin may not with another, so only by experimenting can one secure a mixture that is nourishing. Some persons are strong advocates of witch hazel extract, and there is no doubt of its efficiency when it is used. If the mixture begins to harden before the extract is in it may be returned for an instant to the basin of hot water. If at any time it becomes really hot it will not harm.
(6) It would be all right if they have the approval of their gymnasi-

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

A TOOTHACHE DINNER.
Mock Turtle Soup—The material for this soup is one turkey carcass, two tablespoonfuls of flour, two tablespoonfuls of butter, two eggs, tomatoes, two eggs (hard boiled), one lemon, allspice, pepper, salt, celery, parsley, wine or good vinegar to taste. Instead of a turkey carcass use two chicken carcasses or a calf's head may be used. Cover the meat with cold water, boil until meat falls from the bone. Put through chopper. Brown the flour in the butter, add tomatoes (strained), eggs, sliced lemon, celery, spices and parsley to taste.

Oysters and Potato Balls.—Boil a kettle full of potatoes with pebbles on and let stand until the following day, so as to allow them to become firm, the next day peel and grate them and fry in rather deep lard. Allow the lard to become smoking hot, then turn in the grated potatoes, sprinkle two tablespoonfuls of flour on them, enough salt and pepper to suit the taste. While stirring them they will turn little balls, fry good and brown. For the oyster dressing, take one quart of oysters, add one cup of vinegar, one-half cup of catsup, salt and pepper to suit the taste. Pour this over the potato balls. Serve the oyster dressing in little bowls and the potato balls are served, each one pours the dressing over.

Wheat Pastry.—Roll out a good sized piece of pastry and put in center a thick layer of sliced (fine) onions, then a layer of sliced raw potato, then about a pound of raw chopped beef, season with salt and pepper. Roll up the pastry like an apple turnover, press down around edges and bake slowly about three-quarters of an hour.

Egg and Tomato Salad.—Boil four eggs, remove from shells, cut in halves crosswise, and remove yolks. Remove a slice from end of each cup and fill with the following: Wipe and pare a cucumber, cut in tiny cubes, to make one-half cupful. Add two tablespoonfuls of chopped lettuce leaves on plates, on lettuce place a thick slice of tomato and upon this the filled egg cup. Mash yolks of eggs and moisten with salad dressing, thin enough to suit. Garnish tops of egg cups with this mixture and diamond shaped pieces of cucumber.

Whipped Cream on Chocolate Muffins.—One-half cup sugar, one-quarter cup butter or one heaping tablespoon; two eggs; three teaspoons (heaping) cocoa, dissolved in hot water, making a smooth paste; one cup sweet milk, one and one-half cups flour; one teaspoon baking powder, vanilla. Stir up as you would cake and bake in muffin tins one-half hour in oven as for cake, and eat warm, hot.

SIMPLE CAKES.
Economy Cake—Two cups granulated sugar, two cups water, one tablespoon lard, one cup seedless raisins, one teaspoon ground cloves, one-half teaspoon salt. Boil ingredients five minutes, when quite cold, add one three cups sifted flour and small quantity of grated orange or lemon rind. Bake in moderate oven from forty to fifty minutes. This cake improves with age.

Delicious Cake.—Mix to a cream one and one-half cups sugar and two-thirds cup butter; add whites of five eggs beaten to a stiff froth. Stir and beat until light as foam, then add one-half cup cornstarch dissolved in a little sweet milk. Stir in a scant two-thirds cup sweet milk and two and one-half cups sifted flour into which two teaspoons baking powder have been sifted. For icing boil one and one-half cups sugar in one-half cup water until it threads, then pour over the cake, add one teaspoon orange or lemon flavoring and beat until almost cold.

White Cake.—Put whites of two eggs in a cup, then put in enough of melted butter to make a half cup, and fill with milk. Have in mixing bowl one cup sugar, two cups flour, one and one-half teaspoons baking powder. Flavor, then pour in the cupful, beat five minutes and bake in moderate oven.

Glimpses of Married Life

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

"She will get along all right now with a few days' careful nursing," was the doctor's verdict the next morning.

The messenger boy handed in a telegram from Mrs. Reeves before the doctor left, and Dick tore it open nervously and read: "Father is sick in bed. I cannot leave Mother. What was to be done?" Work at the office was piling up, and a supply must be done if there was any possible way to care for Nell. "Isn't there anybody in Fairport who can be had even for a day?" Dick asked in desperation. "I can send for her," she would arrive on the night train.

But Estelle Mardo does not have to fall back upon her lineage for a reputation. She has established one for herself as leading lady with one of the biggest moving picture companies in America.

THE problem of being well dressed without extravagance is always present in the mind of the careful woman and she finds the way to secure refined and becoming apparel at a price that is well within the resources of her income.

Wooltex suits and coats provide the best possible answer to this important problem of correct dress. Always moderate in their prices, yet Wooltex garments are produced with a care and skill and thoroughness of manufacture, that is unequalled in other ready-to-wear garments.

Wooltex garments are always correct in style, conforming in the fullest degree to the style tendency, yet never extreme; always in modes that do not go quickly out of fashion; thus making them most economical to buy.

Considered for good style and elegance alone, the values of Wooltex garments are remarkable; when to this you add an exceptionally extended service, the unusual economy of buying Wooltex garments is overwhelming.

The coat illustrated, No. 1321, represents the refined character of all Wooltex garments, which are now shown in very broad assortments of both coats and suits, at a very interesting range of popular prices.

How Two Men Cured LaGrippe

Last winter I suffered with a terrible cold and a case of la grippe. When getting well of la grippe I still had a hacking cough and for several months could get no relief. Finally I began taking Foley's Honey and Tar and soon was well of both cough and cold and it never returned.

P. C. Prevoy, Bedford, Ind., writes: "After having an attack of la grippe I left me with a severe cough and tried everything. I lost in weight and got so thin it looked as though I would never get well. I tried Foley's Honey and Tar Compound and the bottle cured me. I am now well and back to normal weight."

Foley's Honey and Tar Compound is a healing family remedy and seldom fails to relieve coughs, colds, croup, whooping cough, raw and inflamed throat, light and sore chest, irritated tickling throat and bronchial coughs.

"No, I hardly think so," answered Reginald Nelson slowly. "I have these letters of introduction to assist me in getting started in America, for I must settle down somewhere and go to work for a living."

"Make Bronson your home and you will never regret having given up a life of inglorious ease," answered Townley. "Bronson is a city of opportunity, and it is growing by leaps and bounds. Its population is now 50,000. You will find life in Bronson."

Reginald Nelson pondered for a little while before answering, and then he said smilingly, "If I should make Bronson my starting place I shall have at least one friend to begin with."

"Count on me," responded Townley, also smiling, "but I shall miss my guess if you do not soon gain in Bronson all the friends you need."

"Let it be Bronson, then," said Reginald. "I will accompany you from New York."

Albert Townley was about to question Reginald in regard to himself when they were both astonished to hear a girlish voice exclaim, "Why, here's our Mr. Townley!" A beautiful young girl stood before them, asking, "Where did you come from?"

"The girl's mother was with her daughter."

"This is pleasant, I assure you. I thought you were to remain another winter in Paris," said Townley.

"Joy became so homesick that we had to start for Bronson and her father kept writing for us to return, so here we are," replied the woman.

"I am so glad to be on my way back to Bronson," added the daughter.

"Always loyal," responded Mr. Townley. He introduced the mother and daughter to Reginald as "Mrs. Graham and her daughter, Miss Joy."

Albert Townley began to explain how Reginald was crossing the sea to make America his future home.

"He has just been showing me an introduction which he has to Mr. Graham's law firm," he said to Mrs. Graham, with interest.

"You will like Bronson, I am sure," said Joy Graham, turning to Reginald.

"Mr. Townley has interested me already in your native city of Bronson," said Reginald. "He is a special friend of your family, I judge."

"He is one of the ministers in Bronson."

"A minister?" said Reginald, in amazement. "Do you mean that Mr. Townley is a clergyman?"

"Yes," laughed the girl.

"I should never have judged he was a clergyman," said the immigrant. "Surely his dress does not indicate it."

around New York, Reginald accompanied Albert Townley to Bronson.

The day after his arrival in Bronson Albert Townley was walking down the main street, nodding his head continually, like a Chinese mandarin, as his numerous friends greeted him on every side. Suddenly two men stopped in front of him.

"I am glad to see you home again, Mr. Townley," said the older of the two men.

"Mr. Graham, I declare!" responded the minister heartily. "It does me good to see some familiar faces once more."

"Mrs. Graham and Joy have been telling me about their pleasant voyage home on the same boat with you," said the other, who was Mrs. Graham's husband. "Here's a friend," he continued, "whom I wish you to meet. This is the new pastor of the Central church, Dr. Allan Rutledge. I think you two men ought to become good friends."

Albert Townley looked at Mr. Graham's companion with a lively interest. He had often heard of the young minister who had stirred the entire middle west with his apostolic fervor.

Shortly the two ministers bade good-bye to Mr. Graham and walked down the street together.

"Tell me something about your work in Wellington," said Mr. Townley.

"There was nothing very wonderful about my ministry in Wellington," replied Allan Rutledge smilingly. "I am surprised to see the interest that country has taken in my work in that small Iowa town. The facts simply were that the community needed the gospel of Christ, and I was privileged to bring it to them in an effective way."

"But in the reports of your work there which I have read," said Townley, "you revolutionized your church, the college in Wellington and the entire community."

"When I began my ministry in Wellington," responded the other, speaking more earnestly, "both our church and college were dead spiritually. There was a distressing lack of life and power, and I simply proved once more what has been proved ten thousand times that the gospel is the power of God."

Before accepting his recent call to Bronson, Allan Rutledge had been pastor for six years in Wellington, Ia., and, as Mr. Townley said, his ministry there had brought him wide fame.

The Central church of Bronson had finally been able to prevail on the powerful young western minister to accept a call, and he had only arrived in Bronson on the week preceding the return of Albert Townley from his trip abroad.

"You have come here," said Albert Townley, speaking with intense earnestness, "in response to the prayers of many true Christian people. We feel we are in bondage in Bronson, and we need a Moses to deliver us."

"Do not for a moment think that I am trying to make out that Bronson is a specially wicked city," continued Townley quickly, "but I would like you to begin your ministry here knowing that Bronson needs a regeneration far more than Wellington ever needed one. There are a multitude of earnest Christian men and women in our city, but the city itself is new in the control of the powers of evil. It is foolish to deny it. A corrupt ring controls our city politics, and it keeps our best citizens under its thumb. Saloons and gambling places are wide open, and no one pretends that our laws regulating and restraining these evils are enforced."

"I am speaking in strict confidence, remember, just as a local physician would speak to a visiting specialist, but I want to give you an illustration of the condition of things as they really are. You noticed that Mr. Graham greeted me very cordially this afternoon when he introduced us. He and I are good friends, and in many ways I respect him as a good citizen. But he is no Christian and does not pretend to be. His wife and daughter are members of your church, but he is not a member, although, as you know, he is the leading trustee in the organization and really controls the Central church. He is well versed in regard to the inward corruption of Bronson, but he regards it as inevitable and will fight any attempt to better conditions. He is the legal counsel of the corrupt ring, and he uses his splendid legal powers to keep that crowd out of the gentlemanly."

CHAPTER II.

Reginald Nelson Gets a Job.

At Townley's unflattering picture of his leading trustee, Allan Rutledge looked somewhat blankly at the merciless diagnostician. He companion noticed the expression and continued: "I want you to pardon me for speaking so plainly, but remember it is the business of a physician to know the disease he is called upon to cure. Your church is merely a sample of what every indutrial church is in Bronson. In my own church the editor of our best daily paper, the Courier, is one of the leading members. He is my chief trustee, but as a Christian he is a doubting Thomas and looks on the church exactly as Mr. Graham does. He would not be a member today had he not joined as a young lad many years ago. He absolutely refuses to use his immense influence to better our social conditions. His excuse always is, 'As long as men are men you will have these evils in Bronson, and there is no use making trouble over it.'"

"I think I am beginning to understand what you are driving at," said Allan Rutledge quietly. "These men they encountered. His shoulders drooped as he passed close by her motionless figure and followed the doctor down the hall to the bedroom door. It opened and closed an instant later and he was with his son.

For a long time, Lydia's somber, pitious gaze hung upon the door through which he had passed and which was closed so cruelly against her, the one who loved him best of all. At last she looked away, her attention caught by a queer clicking sound near at hand. She was surprised to find Yvonne Brood standing close beside her, her eyes closed and her fingers telling the beads that ran through her fingers, her lips moving in voiceless prayer.

The girl watched her dully for a few moments, then with growing fascination. The incomprehensible creature was praying! To Lydia this seemed to be the most unnatural thing in all the world. She could not associate prayer with this woman's character; she could not imagine her having been in all her life possessed of a fervent religious thought. It was impossible to think of her as being even hypocritically pious. Somehow the girl began to experience a strange feeling of irritation. She turned her face away, unwilling to be a witness to this shallow mockery. She was herself innately religious. In her secret soul she resented an appeal to heaven by this luxurious wording; she could not bring herself to think of her as anything else.

Prayer seemed a profanation on her scarlet lips.

Lydia believed that Frederic had shot himself. She put Yvonne down as the real cause of the calamity that had fallen upon the house. But for her, James Brood would never have had a motive for striking the blow that crushed all desire to live out of the unhappy boy. She had made of her husband an unfeeling monster, and now she prayed! She had played with the emotions of two men and now she begged to be pardoned for her folly!

An inexplicable desire to laugh at the plight of the trifle came over the girl, but even as she checked it another and more unaccountable force ordered her to obey the impulse to turn once more to look into the face of her companion.

Yvonne was looking at her. She had ceased running the beads and her hands hung limply at her side. For a full minute, perhaps, the two regarded each other without speaking.

"He is not going to die, Lydia," said Yvonne gravely.

The girl started to her feet. "Do you think it is your prayer and not mine that has reached God's ear?" she cried in real amazement.

"The prayer of a nobler woman than either you or I has gone to the throne," said the other.

Lydia's eyes grew dark with resentment. "You could have prevented all—"

"Be good enough to remember that you have said all that to me before, Lydia."

"What is your object in keeping me away from him at such a time as this, Mrs. Brood?" demanded Lydia. "You refuse to let me go in to him. Is it because you are afraid of what—"

"There are trying days ahead of us, Lydia," interrupted Yvonne. "We shall have to face them together. I can promise you this: Frederic will be saved for you. Tomorrow, next day perhaps, I may be able to explain everything to you. You hate me today. Everyone in this house hates me."

"It has to do with his mother," Brood cried out. "Come! I want you to hear it, too, Hodder."

"There isn't much time to lose, I'm afraid," began Hodder, shaking his head. His gaze suddenly rested on Mrs. Brood's face. She was very erect, and a smile such as he had never seen before was on her lips—a smile that puzzled and yet inspired him with a positive, undeniable feeling of encouragement.

"He is not going to die, Doctor Hodder," she said quietly. Something went through his body that warmed it curiously. He felt a thrill, as one who is seized by a great overpowering excitement.

She preceded them into the hall. Brood came last. He closed the door behind him after a swift glance at the room that had been his most private retreat for years.

He was never to set foot inside its walls again. In that single glance he bade farewell to it forever. It was a hated, unlovely spot. He had spent an age in it during those bitter morning hours, an age of imprisonment.

On the landing below they came upon Lydia. She was seated on a window ledge, leaning wearily against the casement. She did not rise as they approached, but watched them with steady, smoldering eyes in which there was no friendliness, no compassion. They were her enemies, they had killed the thing she loved.

Brood's eyes met hers for an instant and, then, before the bitter look

CHAPTER XXII.

The Closed Door.

The doctor blinked for a moment. The two were leaning forward with alarm in their eyes, their hands gripping the table.

"Well, are we to send for an undertaker?" demanded Hodder irritably. Brood started forward. "Is he dead?"

"Of course not, but he might as well be," exclaimed the other; and it was plain to be seen that he was very much out of patience. "You've called in another doctor and a priest and now I hear that a Presbyterian parson is in the library. Hang it all, Brood, why don't you send for the coroner and undertaker and have done with it? I'm blessed if I—"

Yvonne came swiftly to his side. "Is he conscious? Does he know?"

"For God's sake, Hodder, is there any hope?" cried Brood.

"I'll be honest with you, Jim. I don't believe there is. It went in here, above the heart, and it's lodged back there by the spleen's somewhere. We haven't located it yet, but we will. Had to let up on the ether for awhile, you see. He opened his eyes a few minutes ago, Mrs. Brood, and my assistant is certain that he whispered Lydia Desmond's name. Sounded that way to him, but, of course—"

"There! You see, James?" she cried, whirling upon her husband.

"I think you'd better step in and see him now, Jim," said the doctor, suddenly becoming very gentle. "He may come to again and—well, it may be the last time he'll ever open his eyes. Yes, it's as bad as all that."

"I'll go—at once," said Brood, his face ashen. "You must revive him for a few minutes, Hodder. There's something I've got to say to him. He must be able to hear and to understand me. It is the most important thing in the world to him, but of course—"

"You'll have to be careful, Jim. He's ready to collapse. Then it's all off."

"Nevertheless, Doctor Hodder, my husband has something to say to his son that cannot be put off for an instant. I think it will mean a great deal to him in his fight for recovery. It will make life worth living for him."

Hodder stared for a second or two. "He'll need a lot of courage and if anything can put it into him, he'll make a better fight. If you get a chance, say it to him, Jim. I—I if it's got anything to do with his mother, say it, for pity's sake. He has moaned the word a dozen times—"

"It has to do with his mother," Brood cried out. "Come! I want you to hear it, too, Hodder."

"There isn't much time to lose, I'm afraid," began Hodder, shaking his head. His gaze suddenly rested on Mrs. Brood's face. —even Frederic. There's a day coming when you will not hate me. That was my prayer, Lydia. I was not praying for Frederic, but for myself."

Lydia started. "For yourself? I might have known you—"

"You hesitate? Perhaps it is just as well."

"I want to say to you, Mrs. Brood, that it is my purpose to remain in this house as long as I can be—"

"You are welcome, Lydia. You will be the one great tonic that is to restore him to health of mind and body. Yes, I shall go further and say that you are commanded to stay here and help me in the long fight that is ahead of us."

"I—I thank you, Mrs. Brood," the girl was surprised into saying.

Both of them turned quickly as the door to Frederic's room opened and James Brood came out into the hall. His face was drawn with pain and anxiety, but the light of exaltation was in his eyes.

"Come, Lydia," he said softly, after he had closed the door behind him. "He knows me. He is conscious. Hodder can't understand it, but he seems to have suddenly grown stronger. He—"

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets.

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must keep your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a 'sallow' complexion, dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle.

Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

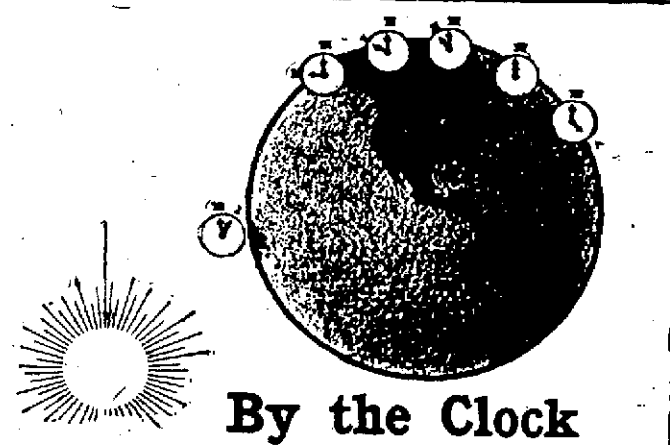

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action, yet always effective.

They bring about that exuberance of spirit, that natural buoyancy which should be enjoyed by everyone, by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

You will know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets by their olive color. 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

Roumanian Capital, Bucharest, Is a Modern Commercial City

Washington, D. C., April 12.—Describing Bucharest, the capital of Roumania, a statement issued today by the National Geographic Society says:

The Roumanians have spared no effort or thought toward making Bucharest, their capital city, a real capital, and not just one of the larger Balkan towns, cut to the severe design of the modern commercial city that is found throughout the West. The whole history of the Roumanians since the casting off of the Turkish yoke has been one of conservative progress leavened with enterprise of a thrift lightened by keen appreciation of the embellishments and pleasures of life. And in Bucharest one finds more artistic, literary, and scientific life than in any other part of the peninsula. Today, the ministries there are facing the enormous difficulties of normal Balkan politics, made a thousand times more difficult by the European war, but the past gives the assurance—the Roumanians are not likely to risk lightly what they have built up with so much care.

Bucharest is an attractive city of 300,000. It is laid out with many broad boulevards and avenues, as becomes a capital; and has, as Paris, Berlin and Washington, famous drives and parks within its area, an "avenue of parades," and zoological and botanical gardens. The city is built in a hollow between the hills upon both sides of the Dimbovitza River, which is crossed by twelve ornate bridges. There are some truly magnificent buildings upon its broad thoroughfares, among the most prominent of which are the royal palace, the university, the national theatre, and the palace of justice. Bucharest has some squalid sections, with narrow, crooked streets, but these are reminiscent of the Turkish regime, and are fast disappearing, making room for a considerable commercial business, it is of no importance industrially.

"Bucharest, like our own capital, has been developed primarily as a capital. The Roumanians have chosen Paris and Vienna as their models, and have produced a judicious blending of the two upon the much smaller Balkan scale. Bucharest has been a city of good music and its people who gather in the concert halls or enjoy the free military concerts in the evening along some promenade are appreciative and critical listeners. The national theatre brings varied offerings, and that the best. Then, the entertainments of the little capital are discreet imitations of social Paris, with a touch of mild Viennese friendliness. Furthermore, Bucharest, as also becomes a European capital, is a great educational center. Its schools, academies, colleges, and university are models for Balkan countries."

One building—the school house—will house them all. The old school building, which has been the scene of many public meetings, is to be torn down.

Some time ago Dwight H. Perkins, an expert of community building, gave a talk here in which he said that building a school house for community center purposes as well as the regular school needs, helps rather than hinders the regular school work. Also it is possible, he told the citizens, to secure the equipment for five buildings, so constructed, almost as cheaply as one could be secured for the one. The building, when completed, will give Osseo a model community structure.

Smyrna Is Bearing the Brunt of Attack Against the Turks

Washington, D. C., April 12.—Describing the Turkish city of Smyrna, which has been bearing the brunt of an alleged attack in the Near East, today's statement of the National Geographic Society says:

"Smyrna has occupied its place upon the map for more than 3,000 years, and through all this time it has retained its ancient name. Its mixed character of East and West, and its significance in the world of trade. From the first, it has been a rich produce exchange, a great caravan and an important harbor, receiving merchant fleets under every flag. Known to the olden Greeks as 'The First City of Asia,' it survives, in the present, the greatest city in Asia Minor, and the second port of an extensive empire.

"While Ephesus, Miletus, Sardis, Magnesia, Pergamus, and Halicarnassus have faded away, Smyrna has continued its story of unvarying vitality. It has risen superior to every stress, remaining today what it was yesterday, as lasting as Mount Parnassus at its back. The rise, splendor and decay of great empires have formed but momentary episodes in this city's life, whose history stretches from the 11th century before the birth of Christ down to the present day. It, most truly, deserves the title of Eternal City; for it, like the phoenix of mythology, has ever renewed its neverless age by a more magnificent youth.

"Smyrna was founded by Aeolian Greeks upon the natural outlet of an important trade route. It grew rapidly into wealth and power, and power, and early took the lead among the cities of Asia Minor. Ionian Greeks conquered the city in the 7th century B. C., and under their masters it played a leading role in the Ionian League. Jealous of its tremendous riches, the Lydians captured and conscientiously destroyed Smyrna in 575 B. C. Their endeavors were so thorough that there remained but a village until after the Macedonian conquest. Alexander the Great caused the city to be rebuilt, and it was laid out with extravagant magnificence. Among the many beautiful buildings of this new city was the Homereum, where the poet, Homer, was worshipped as a hero. The Seleucidae declared the city sacred and inviolable.

"In the days of Roman conquest, Smyrna was the great world center of art and learning, somewhat the Paris of that early age. The Romans, who treated the city well, called it 'The Philosophers Grove,' and also 'The Oasis of the Muses and the Graces.' For many generations, Smyrna was the proudest Asiatic possession of the Byzantine Empire of the East. In 1402, it was destroyed by the Mongols of Tamerlane, and such of its inhabitants as could be found were killed. When it fell to the Turks, Smyrna received another loving nickname. It was called 'The Eye of Asia Minor.'

"The city lies at the head of the Gulf of Smyrna, some 200 miles southwest of Constantinople, with which it is now connected by rail. The foreground of the port is level ground, while the background is cut down the sharp shoulder of Mount Pagos. There is a population of more than 20,000, of which about one-half is Greek, one-fourth Mohammedan, while Armenians and Jews make up the greater part of the remainder. There were also a large number of European residents before the war, who in order of their numbers, were French, English, Italian, Swiss and German. Greek is the language of greatest currency, and at the war's outbreak, French was the most useful tongue for the visiting foreigner.

"Smyrna was divided into five quarters, for the Turk, the Jew, the Armenian, the Greek, and the European. The Turkish and Jewish quarters were devoted, overcrowded, squalid and forbidding. The Armenian and Greek sections were well built, with wider and cleaner streets, and of more satisfying appearance. The European section was Smyrna's glory. Here were the finest thoroughfares, the most imposing buildings, a sharply contrasting cleanliness, and the lovely water front. The strange organization of the city has given occasion for the development of a curious municipal government. The Christian and Jewish communities have separate elected councils, which are presided over by their respective religious heads.

"The trade of Smyrna is large. It is worthy of note under present conditions that the greatest part of this trade was in the hands of the English. It has an annual import of about $1,500,000 and an annual export of nearly $2,000,000. The imports are manufactures, coal, iron, and the exports are mainly the famous Smyrna rugs, raisins, tobacco, and silk."

"OLD MAN" WAGNER PLAYS LIKE YOUNG

Although Forty Years Old "Hans" Still Plays With The Vigor of a Youngster.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] In a few more days, when the baseball season opens, Wagner starts his nineteenth season. Fair, fit, and forty-one, this grand old man's lustre is still undimmed. It was rumored that he might finish his career as a first baseman, as did that other great shortstop of a few years ago, Huggins. Wagner, though, it was said that he would play third base in order to permit Clarke's young wonder, Gerber, to caper about.

Manager Clarke of the Pirates has been moving the "old man" about a bit this year in an effort to strengthen the team as a whole. It was rumored that he might finish his career as a first baseman, as did that other great shortstop of a few years ago, Huggins. Wagner, though, it was said that he would play third base in order to permit Clarke's young wonder, Gerber, to caper about.

However, it is a good guess that the Dutchman will be doing business at the same old stand—a stand established since 1892.

Let us slow down a bit for the first time in his life he hit for less than .300. This year he promises better. He is not through yet; his star still twinkles.

MORRIS MILLER

"I want my players to be conceited. I want each player to believe he is a star of the first water. I want my team to think it is a club so good that it can't be beaten. Call that conceit if you will, but that's what I want the St. Louis Browns to have. Branch Rickey gave way to those remarks the other day. He says he's inculcating in his players with the seriousness of a confessor. 'I call it conceit,' thought, while others say it is conceit," says Rickey. "Call it what you will, I feel it will help me produce a good team and one hard to beat."

Reb Russell of the Chicago White Sox pitched while wearing a rubber shirt, won his game and made a single, a triple and a home run. In a straight-jacket he would be some pitcher.

Jess Willard seems destined to make more money than any man ever before made out of the fight game. Winning the world title probably is worth a cool half a million to him. The biggest bunch of coin will come from the theatrical appearances at about $1000 a day for half a year, then $2,000 to $3,000 a week for the rest of the year. Then will follow many weeks of vaudeville, mixed with a few ten-round exhibition bouts at about $15,000 each, in which his title would be risked. All this will pile up over $500,000 before he puts his title at stake again, probably more than two years hence, and every world champion's battle he can fight means a big addition to his pile.

"If George Boehler comes through and pitches as he should, and Pep Young, our new second sacker, hits the ball as he should, that Detroit club of mine will have a fine chance of winning," says So. So says Hugh Jennings, the celebrated grass chewing coaching manager. "I've got the best outfield in the league, and if Young shows, with the stick my infield won't be beaten by any in the circuit. My club can always be depended upon, too, to give the pitchers an average of four runs to a game."

Johnny Kilbane, the featherweight boxing champion who recently received $5,500 for boxing Kid Williams six rounds in Philadelphia, the latter also receiving the same amount of money for his eighteen minutes' work, aspires to become the bantamweight and lightweight champions. In doing so he might win much prize money, but might also handicap his performances in the featherweight class. Kilbane offers to make 116 pounds, ringside, for Williams, the bantamweight title holder. It would be easy for Kilbane to make the 133 or 155 pound weight for Freddie Welsh, the present lightweight champion.

Boxers in Australia are treated better than anywhere else in the world. Dave Smith, the hero of three crushing defeats by Eddie McGoorty last year, collected from the Stadium management $2,700 ($13,500). Of this, $1,200 ($6,000) was received for one fight with McGoorty. In that contest Smith lasted less than two minutes, never struck an effective blow, and was knocked out so completely that he had to be carried out of the ring. No man should complain about payment of that kind. Yet a second contest was arranged between Smith and McGoorty, and Smith actually received $200 ($1,000) for getting into the ring with the American.

CARDS VICTORIOUS OVER VARSITY FIVE IN HARD STRUGGLE

Lakotas Add One More Scarp to Record List When They Down Team of Badger Players

Sensational basket shooting, coupled with close guarding work of the entire Lakota Cardinal team, brought them victory Saturday night when they trounced the Wisconsin All Stars by a score of 21 to 14, after an interesting struggle. As usual between these two teams there was an extra guard, and almost unlimited amount of rough work, and the game was truly up to the expectations of the Cardinals, for the varsity five sought revenge for two other defeats sustained here.

The visitors had an aggregation, who, from their reputation as conference stars, should have beaten the Cardinals. Against Hemming at center was Floden, a W. man, but Hemming outplayed him, scoring three goals to his one. Hass, a varsity guard, was against Dalton, who was held scoreless, through his missing of a dozen easy shots, but he played the floor for the Lakotas, feeding the ball to Hemming, and Atwood for scoring. At forward Myers played and not much attention was paid to him by the Cardinals because of his marked inability to count baskets. He is a star dribbler and floor man, but is not dangerous to whom he chooses. He was made to look like a novice, against Edler and the Wisconsin man's habit of hanging under the basket netted him little for he rarely got hold of the ball. Curtin played against Atwood the first half and was "soft" for Eddie, who counted five times on short shots while Curtin was missing on his mark trying to hold his arms. The Lakota star slipped away from him by his trick of turning while in the air and registering the goal by batting the ball more than shooting it into the air.

First Half.
In the first half the first five minutes ended without a score, with the Lakotas taking good care of their goal, bunching to prevent short shots under the basket. Having three and four men down to guard stopped several scores, for when one of the team started dribbling down the floor, there was no player ahead to take the ball. This fault was remedied and soon the goals started rolling up. Atwood and Hemming were the only Janesville men to score in this half, although Dalton had several chances to drop the ball through, but overshot in his haste. What goals he missed were made up for by his guarding and teamwork for the little forward was up and down the big floor like a flash, breaking up plays, and his nerve soon made him a subject to rough work.

Myers proved himself to be the first offender when he attempted to use his elbow and knees on Dalton, who slipped under him and left Myers prone on the floor, for his efforts. Enraged, Myers started after Edler and "accidentally" banged the Lakota man on the ear with a doubled fist. He was given warning for trying to trip Atwood on the jump to prevent his getting the ball, and before the half was over, the crowd hooted his tactics. The half score was 13 to 6, with the Lakotas on the right side of the ledger.

Second Half.
The Wisconsin varsity men started Atwood to the whole five watching the basket. Myers shoved Dalton into the railing and for the violation was floored with considerable force by Edler, which caused the visitor to behave thereafter with meekness. The fall took all the fight out of him. Skinner replaced Curtin at guard against Atwood. The blonde athlete played the goal and counted twice on long shots that helped bring the score up to a presentable appearance. With Atwood being covered Hemming played the goal and scored two over Floden. Edler counted a pretty side shot and the half closed with Dalton missing an easy shot. The score of the half stood eight and eight.

Summary.
Lakota Cardinals—Dalton, r. f.; Atwood, l. f.; Hemming, c.; Edler, l. g.; Ryan, r. g.
Wisconsin All Stars—Chandler, r. f.; Myers, l. f.; Floden, c.; Hass, l. g.; Curtin and Skinner, r. g.
Field baskets—Atwood, 6; Hemming, 3; Edler, 1; Myers, 1; Floden, 1; Hass and Skinner, 2 out of 5; Hemming, 1 out of 6.
Referee—Langdon.

Moving Pictures.
Company B is next. The Pond du Lac self-styled champs come down on Friday with the mighty Fogarty, the still mightier Hawkins, and their regular tribe, in hopes of beating the Lakotas in revenge for the other game by a double score. This game will be the last of the season. Floden and Hemming came near having trouble in the second half when Floden missed a half-hearted effort of a Willard punch and sought to follow it up when the players and Referee Langdon interfered.

HARRY MCCORMICK
BARELY ESCAPES
COMEBACK STUNT.

"Handsome Harry" McCormick, formerly a well-known member of the Giants, and now manager of the Chattanooga team in the Southern association, is telling how he narrowly escaped being sent back to the majors this year. Last year a big league scout, who should have known McCormick in uniform as far as he could see him, wandered down to Chattanooga looking for young players. McCormick was playing right field at the time and clouting minor league pitching at the rate of 380. The scout saw the game and that night met McCormick.
"See anything, you liked?" asked Harry.
"Well, yes," replied the scout. "I like that right field. You're a good player. You can't run much, but he certainly can hit that ball. Name a price on him and I'll take him."
The next day he saw McCormick's name in the box score and he hasn't been seen in Chattanooga since.

Leslie Mann has invented a new glass that will enable him to look up through the glasses and down without them. What he needs most is one that will make him see a fast curve ball.

TWO MILLER TEAMS MEET HERE TUESDAY FOR PRACTICE GAME

Sullivan's Hoard's Creamery and Cantillon's Gas House Squads Meet on Local Diamond.

Sullivan's Hoard's Creamery Swatters and Cantillon's Gas House Terrors will be the teams of the American association which will play at the Park association diamond Tuesday afternoon in a practice game preliminary to the opening of the season for the Millers and the Brewers at Milwaukee Wednesday. It was not so many years ago that Joe Cantillon was a stellar ball player among the sturdy lads of the Second ward who played barehanded on improvised diamonds in pasture lots or vacant spaces. Since that time, however, he has gone out to win fame in the baseball world. His Janesville friends will be pleased to greet him and to see the team of which he is manager in action. He announces his lineup for tomorrow as follows:

Sullivan's Hoard's Creamery: Mitchell, 3b; Fiene, 1b; Massey, 2b; Clymer, ss; Sullivan, c; Ingersoll, lf; Fiske, cf; S. Brown, rf; Dumont, p; Wiley, p.

Cantillon's Gas House Terrors: Holland, rf; Altizer, ss; Williams, 2b; Cashion, 1b; Gharrity, c; Gooch, cf; F. Brown, 3b; Wilson, lf; Fast, p; Wahlstrom, p.

In a recent interview regarding the Millers' prospects for the coming season, Cantillon said:
"I believe the Millers will prove a surprise to many people. A lot of them figure us as having only a weak and untried team for this year's race, but I think these same wise ones will find the Millers a hustling, speedy, aggressive and pretty wise aggregation of baseball players."

"The outlook for the team right now is a bright one. We will have more speed than for three or four years and speed is an important factor in the success of any team. And we will have a whole lot of the best coaching staff we have ever had in Billy Sullivan and the two youngsters. 'Yip' Owens was a great catcher, but Sullivan, I think, will make better pitchers and will have a more valuable man than Owens in that way. Sullivan will take part in many ball games this year."

Other clubs in the association look evenly balanced with ours. I think it will be an even race with nothing approaching a runaway. Every club has a shot at the flag this year. Milwaukee has practically the same team as last year and will be hard to beat. Their pitchers are steady and their catchers good. Louisville has a good ball team and Kansas City should be strong. Indianapolis finished third last season and has been strengthened since then. It looks like a dandy race with Minneapolis in the thick of it."

Common Failing.
"We allus magnifies de importance of our own doin's," said Uncle Eben. "A man wit a funny story on his mind imagines dat everybody ought to stop work and listen."

INDUSTRIAL BODY ISSUES PAMPHLET ON SAFETY IDEA

Book Relates Instance of Carelessness on Factory Owners' Parts and Their Results.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Madison, Wis., April 12.—"While inspecting a woodworking plant a Wisconsin industrial commission deputy found a square-headed jointer. He ordered the installation of a safety head. The owner said: 'I have no employees, this plant belongs to me and my brother and no one else is allowed to use this jointer. It has been in just that condition for over twenty years, and neither of us has received a scratch from it. We will not install a circular head until we have to.'"

"In less than ten days after this conversation this same man was caught in the jointer knives, and four fingers were cut off. He then complained because the deputy had not forced him to employ a round head immediately."

This is only one of several instances related in a new pamphlet issued by the Wisconsin industrial commission under the title "Wisconsin's Movement for Industrial Safety." The pamphlet is issued in response to a growing demand for information about the state's work in the reduction of industrial accidents. The bulletin not only relates the results of the safety campaign which began in 1911, but goes into the philosophy and theory behind the Wisconsin safety movement. The subject is not treated exclusively from a Wisconsin standpoint, but is looked at in its national spirit. Quotations from prominent writers on the subject are scattered through the sixteen pages of the pamphlet.

"During the year 1914," says the bulletin "about 12,000 accidents causing disability of more than one week occurred in the 10,000 factories and workshops of Wisconsin. In this one year 163 men were killed. The toll of industry upon human lives, human resources and happiness is appalling. Our problem is to reduce the losses and suffering due to accidents. The size of the establishment of the nature of the industry is of little significance. All factories may cause accidents. The hazard differs only in degree. To protect our workmen, each place must be safeguarded. The single unguarded belt of a thousand may be the cause of maiming or killing a man; the fact that an unguarded set screw has not caused a single injury during a hundred years is no security that it will never entangle the clothes of an unfortunate victim, wind him around the shaft and add one more to the list of fatal accidents."

"To the factory owner who has been in business twenty years and has never had an accident on that 'harmless little gear,' an order to guard it seems ridiculous and absurd. But during the past year those same little gears killed one man, caused two men to lose a hand, five to lose an arm, one to lose a foot, thirty-five to lose fingers, and injured seventy-three less seriously."

"Many of the large employers have adopted proper means of educating their employees and instructing them in accident prevention. The education of workmen—teaching them to be careful, and arousing their interest in the safety movement—has achieved marvelous results. It has brought about great reductions of accidents wherever employed. One manufacturer in Wisconsin reduced his accidents 75 per cent the first year, and two-thirds of this reduction he attributes directly to the educating of his men. Reductions ranging from 30 per cent to 60 per cent experienced during the first few years of safety work, are common."

The bulletin tells in detail the methods of shop organization for the prevention of accidents and gives figures showing the gratifying results obtained from such organizations.

FIGHT ON COAL TAX WAGED BY COMPANIES

Consumer Paying Wealth to Coal Magnates Since Tax Law Was Enforced in Pennsylvania.

Harrisburg, Pa., April 12.—While the ultimate consumer merrily pays twenty-five cents a ton extra for his hard coal, the drama of the Pennsylvania anthracite coal tax law is slowly but expensively being enacted in the Keystone State. The action has been developing for over a year and a half, the coal companies have been fighting the law, and the state has been fighting the companies. The coal companies have been fighting the law, and the state has been fighting the companies. The coal companies have been fighting the law, and the state has been fighting the companies.

The entire situation grew out of a desire of conservationists and others to give Pennsylvania ample doses of coal dollars to offset the pain of seeing their principal natural resources, anthracite coal—carried off to other states, to keep their enterprising going, while this state got only the price of the coal and a residue of mother earth "good for nothing" after the coal was taken out. So in 1913 a law was enacted putting a tax of 2½ percent of the value of the coal on the mine. This was a levy of ten cents a ton. This was the tax so collected was to be returned to the counties wherein the coal was mined. Experts claim that 80 per cent of the anthracite mined in Pennsylvania is shipped into other states.

It was figured by the Auditor General that the statute would bring in between four and five million of dollars revenue a year. The measure was effective July 1, 1913 and state officials figured that $2,300,000 was owing to the state January 1, 1914. The coal companies immediately instituted a test-suit against the constitutionality of the act, claiming it was invalid because it was special legislation, soft coal being exempted from the provision of the law. After about $20,000 has been paid into the state treasury by the coal operators, they decided to discontinue further payments until the constitutionality of the act was settled.

However, the coal operators have been collecting the tax assiduously. According to experts, the companies have been levying twenty-five cents a ton extra on anthracite in order to "defray the additional cost of meeting the statute's provisions." At the present time over $7,000,000 is due the state, while $18,000,000 have been added to the nation's fuel bill, according to experts.

To make the drama more interesting, while the Dauphin county court is considering the appeal case, the coal companies are endeavoring to have the statute repealed. Should the statute be repealed, another measure, covering the constitutional objection in the present law, will be immediately submitted. If the Dauphin county court decides against the operators, an appeal will be taken to the state supreme court.

In the meantime, the coal companies are levying tribute from the ultimate consumer.

Evansville News

Evansville, April 12.—Three Madison youths, Frank Reago, aged 11 years, Willie Crowder, aged 10, and John Crowder, 14 years of age, left Madison Friday night, ostensibly starting for the wild and woolly west with the evident intention of massacring the few red men still inhabiting that region. They followed the wagon road, reaching Oregon at evening and making their night's lodging under a tree. Early the next morning they continued their journey until they were overtaken just south of Brooklyn, by L. K. Crissey, who brought them to the city. They were fully equipped for their journey, carrying with them one repeating rifle, two woodman's hatchets, six boxes of shells and a knapsack containing a couple of loaves of bread, two cans of beans, and a bag of ginger snaps. Their journey to the Mississippi and western regions was curtailed for the present by their apprehension in this city, where they were detained until the 9:55 p. m. passenger train. Local officers got into telephone communication with their parents, who would meet them at the Madison depot and they were taken to the train in charge of the conductor.

Married at eight o'clock Saturday evening at the bride's home on Longfield street, Mrs. Laura Flint of this city to Lyman Beraud of Osakis, Minn. The ceremony, which was performed by Rev. C. B. Best Laxative For Children

When your baby is cross and fretful instead of the happy laughing little dear you are accustomed to, in all probability the digestion has become deranged and the bowels need attention. Give it a mild laxative, dispel the irritability and bring back the happy content of babyhood.

The very best laxative for children is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, because it contains no opiate or narcotic drug, is pleasant tasting and acts gently, but surely, without griping or other distress. Druggists sell Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle. For a free trial bottle write to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 452 Washington St., Monticello, Ills.

CASH IN ON THE ODDS AND ENDS

Do you realize that there's more real money "laying around the house" than you'd had any idea of?

Well, there is.

How long is it since you took an "inventory of odds and ends?"

Well, why not?

Why not check up the "old things" down in the basement?
That old rocker and davenport, the pictures you had removed when the guest room was done over, etc., the odd dishes of the old set, the old range, the old stove, the carpet sweeper (you need a new one anyway)—make up a list of all of them—and then put a Classified Ad in the Want Columns of the Gazette and get the money. Why not?

Thousands of people need those very things—glad to buy them and pay for them—and fix them up.

Why not "cash the odds and ends?" This is what Want Ads are really for, if people only knew it; and you might just as well "get what they're worth" as to "throw them out."
Why not?

Want ads cost a cent a word per insertion. If you pay cash with order you save one-fourth.
